

The Honored Healer

Immortal Soul Line III

Energetic Touch Heals Through Time & Space

Healing Hands Share Golden Rays of Light

Heroic Healers are generally aware of their talents. While some might be in denial, their spiritual gift usually appears early in life and is not easily mistaken. Whether one's able to mend an injured paw, cause greenery to flourish, or dissipate illness, the mark of all Healers is their amazing capacity to bolster the physical health of all living things.

This is a Soul Line of ancient and prevailing lineage. The living universe encourages and sustains the work of its Immortal Healers in all realms. Not one race could have endured or thrived in physical form without the principles and techniques revealed by the Healers who have dwelt among us throughout time.

This energy center swirls in the very center of the body at the solar plexus. A golden light emanates from the shimmering vortex reminiscent of the life-giving force of the sun. Many times, you'll see Healers cross their arms to guard this energy center. This may or may not be unconscious, but it relates to their issue with boundaries.

Boundless compassion fills the souls of those who carry these lines! But with that compassion comes the tendency to "give too much." The lines between the "self" and the "other" can be blurred or indistinct. The Healer reaches out automatically to find pain, and too often, this tendril of comfort allows a harmful energy exchange to take place. For that reason, many healers find themselves buffering against invasive and/or draining situations.

Do you find yourself reaching out with your hands to greet others and comfort those who are suffering? Do you place a high value on your “touch” and find yourself reserving your energy? Have you had the experience of watching a plant, animal, or human improve under your care? Do you seem to have an innate sense that leads you to discern places or patterns that are damaged and need healing?

If these ideas sound like things you experience, chances are good that your soul lineage traces back to the remarkable Physical Healers. As you learn to protect yourself from damaging interference and manage your healing abilities, you will heal yourself and evolve into the gift to humanity you were meant to become!
