

Archetypes for the Functionality of Working Groups and Individual Magick Styles

The Warrior: General Characteristics

This archetype is apparent in people who prefer to face problems head on and who have the strength and endurance to do so in most circumstances. Their indignation or anger are quickly triggered if they observe abuse of the innocent or manipulations of those in vulnerable situations. Warriors are happiest when fighting for causes they believe in and will give all their energy to sustain and promote those causes. In many cases, they're willing to put their lives at risk.

Warriors want to be fighting for people and projects they believe in, and they tend to take an offensive stance. When threats make themselves known, the warrior will naturally rush to eliminate or thwart the enemy. Direct approaches are favored by this valiant archetype.

The Tempest Warrior is a powerful force to be reckoned with and can create large storms of energy to defeat their adversaries. These warriors exude passion and can inspire others to assist them in spiritual and magickal battles. They're superb at tackling large and complex threats. They do need adequate recuperation periods between strikes as they expend a great deal of energy during an attack.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Energy Bombs and Blockades

The Thunderbolt Warrior is excellent at taking precise aim and unleashing focused bursts of energy at single enemy targets. They tend to be independent and confident in their abilities. They're most comfortable as solo practitioners or serving as support forces in small, strategic teams. They tend to be cautious with their energy expenditures and can often sustain long periods of battle readiness without significant rest periods.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Long Range Rifles and Charged Arrows

The Shadow Warrior is stealthy and fully prepared to tackle hidden enemies. This warrior is willing to take the time necessary to lay traps, understand the agenda of the enemy, and lie in wait for opportune times for attack. As magick practitioners, these fighters work very well in small assault teams. They're willing to accept the risk of moving behind enemy lines in order to reach their targets. We advise these warriors to fulfill their missions in the company of a trusted companion who can assist them should they need help returning to safe territories. Their need for rest and recuperation depends on the intensity and duration of the specific task at hand.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Invisibility Cloaks and Daggers

Magickal Warriors work well in teams that like to focus on direct disruption techniques aimed against aggressive interlopers. These types of opponents might include adversarial ET and/or inter-dimensional groups, so called "demonic" or persistent poltergeist activities, and malevolent tricksters.

The Healer: General Characteristics

Healers are attracted to people and situations where their soothing energies are most needed. They seem to have a sixth sense when it comes to finding those who need their help. They often find themselves in positions of giving counsel, offering medical relief, or working on spiritual healing with those who seek them out. They're also drawn to explore and use direct, multi-dimensional healing techniques to solve physical as well as emotional issues.

It's almost impossible for a healer to pass by a living entity in need without stopping to offer assistance. For this reason, they're often depleted and must learn how to establish proper boundaries and take time for themselves to rest and recharge their own energetic fields.

The Dimensional Healer feels drawn to help large groups of people, species of plants and animals, or environments that have fallen prey to hostile invaders. These healers can often be found doing such things as leading efforts to preserve a species, restoring the broken spirits in a war-torn region, or using their magickal talents to bless and cleanse polluted water resources. Dimensional healers enjoy working with groups who share their interests and are adept at raising aligned powers to enhance their magickal work. They may also choose to assist groups of beings in other dimensions. In order to achieve healings beyond the veil, dimensional healers often join forces with their counterparts in other realms.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Large Orbs of Light and Enlivened Root Systems

The Cosmic Healer serves as a shining pillar of planetary support. These gifted beings are usually aware of their unusual abilities and joyfully commit to working with the vibrational energy streams that energize all parts of our 3D world. They also serve as liaisons between angelic overseers and the many sentient species here on earth. Many work with the earth itself, feeling deep ties to the relative health of our planet at any given time. They perceive the health and organic nature that resides in minerals and other elements that many don't recognize as sentient.

These healers often choose to work alone or as a part of a small, intimate group. It's vital that they sustain a specific vibrational resonance with their ethereal source, and so they're hesitant to involve others as any outside element might prove to disrupt their delicate connections. However, they're more than willing to contribute to magickal group efforts as a separate but aligned force.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Pillars of Light and Etheric Sanctuaries

The Auric Healer enables sentient creatures to obtain relief from disease, pain, despair, astral injuries, and other personal afflictions. These are the dedicated souls who tirelessly use their magick through such activities as the laying on of hands, the prescription of natural remedies, the speaking of charged words of power, and other techniques proven to heal and repair weakness or decay. These healers are deeply rewarded for their work by the gratitude reflected in their patient's eyes. Not only do these healers work with physical ailments, but they're also able to assist with the healing of auric fields and other spiritual impairments.

Auric Healers prefer to work with one person, animal, or plant per session. However, they're open to working with small groups to achieve specific goals. As team members, they're open to participating in many types of magickal groups and are usually eager to add their assistance wherever it's needed.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Magickal Potions and Glowing Hands

The Guardian: General Characteristics

Guardians share the warriors' traits of strength, battle worthiness, and devotion to those they protect. However, guardians prefer to work their magick by implementing defensive and protective shields rather than by charging headlong into battle. Although they're prepared and willing to fight in order to protect those in their care, they focus more on protective and blocking measures than on assertive attack strategies. Great guardians often assume the attitude of the male lion watching over his pride or the giant grizzly mother bear willing to guard her brood with her life. While they don't seek out trouble, they're easily roused and ready for combat if perceived threats enter their home territories.

Guardians are generally strong with extra doses of endurance built in. They stand firm in their convictions and most often stick to one style of magick that works for them. They share the warriors' frustration with injustice and accept positions of guardianship to help others remain safe from physical or ethereal threats. They tend to be practical and shy away from making rash decisions. They plan for the long term, but they can be called on for refuge in states of emergency.

The Guardian Bear is a strong, consistent, and devoted protector in times of threat. This is the paladin of the magickal realms. Relying on sheer determination, enhanced endurance, and heightened intimidation factors, these guardians are wonderful to have around as a personal or small group protector. Their senses are attuned to possible threats to those they guard, and they're often able to ward off any troubling nuisance with little more than a trusty etheric growl.

If a threat persists, they're adept at shielding their wards while taking more active measures to confront and remove the intruder. They prefer to work with people and animals they feel close to. They value their position as a guardian most if they respect and/or love those they choose to protect.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Bear Claw or Totem Staff

The Guardian Wolf is a fierce, sensitive, and stealthy protector. These guardians are willing to offer their services to groups of people or animals who share common traits or have united goals. They thrive in diverse social environments that offer lots of room for individuality and freedom. These guardians carry a natural form of "pack" allegiance. They're more than happy to work with other Wolf Guardians in order to protect large gatherings from any kind of harmful interference. They are highly perceptive and love movement and variety. Always a bit restless, they're experts at scouting the perimeters of the energetic fields formed during magickal group activities.

They're comfortable in a variety of settings, but they do best if they share their role as a protector with at least one other "wolf." This gives them a much-needed comradery that sustains their enthusiasm and allows them to experience personal pleasure as they fulfill their roles as guardians.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Phases of the Moon and Blood Pacts

The Guardian Hawk is extremely perceptive and exceptionally gifted at defending large areas of land. These individuals are also outstanding protectors of expansive online networks and virtual spaces. Their gifts enable them to perceive slight changes in the atmosphere which is so often affected by electro-magnetic changes. Detail oriented, their "sharp-shooter" spiritual eyesight allows them to zero in on slight changes and invisible disturbances long before many of us would be aware of any change at all. We all benefit when we invite one of these gifted guardians into our magickal group to watch over our meeting place and our online network of connections.

The Hawk is most content balancing times of solitude with uplifting social interaction. This guardian's unique blend of energies spreads throughout the ethers and connects with important points of synergy. Their magickal constructs overlay physical, virtual, and etheric grids with protective seals. They're also able to alert group members to incoming threats thanks to their extra keen perception.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Naturally Found Feathers and Woven Webs

The Sage: General Characteristics

Sages are invaluable contacts to have and enjoy. They're bubbling receptacles of knowledge, and they thoroughly enjoy the hunt for elusive truths and intellectual advancements. They often lead us down rabbit holes of mystery and mayhem. But thanks to their natural sense of direction, we're usually escorted safely back to the place where we started only to find that we're all the better for having had the adventure. Sages aren't happy unless they're focusing their intelligence on the next new mystery popping up in front of them. They're usually avid readers and enjoy researching topics that interest them. Over time, they develop a reliable wisdom. Their insights stem from their colorful history of unique experiences and their varied intellectual forays.

When part of a magickal group, they're helpful and happy to share their acquired wisdom with trusted friends. They have much to contribute, and they can help their groups achieve remarkable results in a short amount of time thanks to the navigational shortcuts they've mastered.

The Sensitive Sage is a quiet, studious type of individual. Gifted with extraordinary amounts of focus and perseverance, these sages are able to master the subjects that interest them while deflecting a myriad of life's distractions. This practiced focus evolves into a priceless piece of the magickal manifestation process. As a member of a magickal group, they bring specific and well-researched knowledge to the group's attention. They may tend towards shyness and feel most comfortable in the company of people they trust and come to know over time. Once these souls open up, be ready to be amazed by their wisdom. Profound insights and remarkable judgement are just a couple of the irreplaceable assets these sages can share with those who have the patience to listen and pay attention.

They will not raise their voice, so it's up to us to provide open space and quiet settings where they can share freely. They often cast the deciding vote when it comes to making group decisions. And thanks to their objective and unique vantage points, we can rest assured that we're in good hands when we follow their advice.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Quill Pen and An Ancient Tome

The Scientific Sage is forever curious about how and why things work the way they do. They've often spent hours in workshops or laboratories tinkering, inventing, or researching events in their areas of interest. Driven to understand the machinations behind the scenes, these sages have a healthy understanding of conspiracy theories, and they've followed the endless breadcrumbs in round-a-bout explorations enough to have garnered a well-developed sense of discernment. After wandering through so many detours, they've come to be very good at separating facts from fiction. As magickal practitioners, they're well-aware of the hidden realities that exist. They have tremendous respect for the sages that have come before them, and they often follow traditional paths that have rituals and replicable experiments on record.

Not as shy as their more sensitive counterparts, they still aren't prone to waste words. They share what they deem important and enjoy being part of groups working towards tangible goals they feel are worthwhile. Driven by their discoveries, they're happy to share their knowledge and talents with large or small groups. Lacking in ego and short on agendas, they bring fresh authenticity to any gathering.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Alchemical Sigils and Sacred Geometry

The Cryptographer Sage is a genius when it comes to spotting patterns and unlocking portals. They're so gifted at recognizing and categorizing nuances that they're often considered psychic. Their talents do evolve over time and often come to encompass psychic abilities, but their gifts originally stem from their astute attention to details and their ability to catalogue passing patterns that recur throughout their lives. Eventually, they can decode any occurrence and translate its meaning according to their vast inner libraries of codes and configurations. Their observations are so in tune with the collective timeline it's as if they're pulling magick out of thin air. They tend to inhabit zones of high synchronicity, and it often seems like they're manipulating time itself. When patterns become so revealed, who's to say that time isn't folding back onto itself?

These sages are rare and prized additions to groups they become involved with. They tend to shift others into mystical zones of magickal creation. They make excellent advisors regarding decisions that involve repeating patterns. And many can magickally affect outcomes by manipulating the time/space continuum, even if they don't know they're doing it.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Pocket-Watch and Skeleton Key

The Commander: General Characteristics

Commanders are leaders, often charismatic and engaging. Some are born with leadership tendencies and some develop these traits over time. These souls are willing to shoulder the responsibility of leading others through perilous and challenging situations. We look to them for guidance, support, and expertise. An adept commander also knows how and when to delegate tasks to others. Commanders share the characteristic of courage with warriors, and they feel protective of their charges much like guardians. They share wisdom based on their experiences as do the sages, and they often heal psychological setbacks through motivating and encouraging words like healers. They rely on employing bits of each archetype as the situation demands. They project the broad vision, understand the big picture, and refrain from micromanaging the details. Successful commanders help their companions stay on track, maintain focus, remain engaged in the relevant events, and encouraged in times of discouragement.

This is a lot to balance and requires clarity of vision and strength of character. Commanders who earn the respect of their groups through integrity, fairness, and consistency are invaluable additions to any team.

Royal Commanders successfully lead others by holding themselves to the highest of standards. They tend to have a regal air about them. They retain dignity and a sense of self-assurance even in times of disruption and chaos. While they're aware of their oversight responsibilities, they view their magickal counterparts as team members who rely on them to offer wise counsel and appropriate support. They're also aware that they may need to make unilateral decisions for the well-being of the entire group. They don't take this responsibility lightly. They approach the decision-making process with gravity and give serious attention to all possible consequences.

As is the case for any of the Commanders, they need and appreciate a group that's willing to trust them with leadership responsibilities. They often appoint assistants to help them, but they remain aware that the true responsibility lies with them.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Golden Sceptre and Purple Crest

The Military Commander often finds himself in the uncomfortable position of squelching emotional uprisings and restoring order to damaged environments while simultaneously managing a wide variety of passionate team members. These commanders are drawn into conflicts and situations that, by their very nature, demand their unwavering focus and ability to take decisive, appropriate action. They tend to make good decisions based on gut instincts and sharp intuition. In magickal settings, these leaders are competent and reliable when facing off against challenging aggressors. They're also excellent at gathering people together to strategize and discuss new goals that can seem overwhelming and out of reach to most people. They're very good at rounding up the troops and accomplishing the tasks at hand. They enjoy success and bring "winning" energy states into their sphere of influence.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Waving Flag and Silver Sword

The Contemporary Commander breezes through the business boardroom with ease. These commanders are eager to take on unjust legal systems, bring down bloated bureaucracies, and circumvent the corruption of dark puppet masters. They rally disheartened troops and reach heights no one could ever imagine by keeping the team's goals firmly in sight. These commanders unite people through a shared vision to eliminate suffering and transform negativity wherever it appears. They find others who share an affinity for their goals and naturally fall into positions of leadership as they demonstrate their uncanny ability to grasp invisible bottom lines and unravel the target's defenses with speed and precision. They help their team members break down complex goals into reasonable steps. If a magickal group is determined to reform a social injustice or cleanse a corrupt corporation, there's no better leader to have at the helm.

Examples of Magickal Icons: A Judge's Gavel and Scales of Justice

The Oracle: General Characteristics

Oracles naturally connect with beings and energies in extra dimensional realms. These are people we often recognize as psychic, clairvoyant, or prophetic. They seem to be able to reach into other dimensions by using their innate talents of extra-sensory vision and inter-dimensional resonance. We might find these souls using divination tools such as Tarot cards, pendulums, the I Ching, runes, or astrology to access mystical clues and messages that lie beyond the reach of our five senses. Some Oracles are born with the gift of "seeing" into the future. Many are able to perceive reality as it truly is, a complex system of holistic and multidimensional forms.

Throughout history, people have visited oracles to gain extra perspective on their lives. Leaders have sought them out for their foresight and advice. While some oracles might specialize in "telling the future," others are more interested in working between and within multiple realms. Many oracles are here to help us bridge our 3D world with the invisible dimensions that overlap and interact with our world. Some oracles serve as emissaries and liaisons between realms. For example, we might find an oracle who has memories of a past incarnation with a particular extra-terrestrial race and has come to share information with earth humans regarding that species.

In every case, we see common characteristics appearing in this archetype. Oracles are seers and visionaries. They are very aware of how vast and complex our creative, multidimensional universe is. And they tend to access and use their magical and spiritual abilities whenever there's a summons to bridge, shield, connect, or communicate with other dimensions.

The Emissary Oracles who serve as liaisons between dimensions often have memories of their lives before their current earth incarnations. They might “remember” or have imaginative adventures in other types of realities. Many feel a natural attunement to various beings. Some examples might include star families, extra-terrestrials, inner-earth beings, angelic entities, faerie or elven connections, mythical creatures, and galactic cultures based on advanced artificial intelligence. In every case, they feel strong connections to another race or species and often find themselves longing for “home.” As they emerge into their magical power, they will begin to share their experiences, visions, and stories with others. In essence, these perceptive souls help us, as earth humans, realize how vast and varied our universe is. Many times, these oracles are in the position to share ideas and technologies with us that will help our own human race advance.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Shadow birds and origami paper crafts

The Diviner Oracle can peer into parallel worlds and gaze into alternate timelines. Usually, this type of oracle will have some favorite tools such as special cards, stones, or reference system. We tend to think of these gifted oracles as people who can help guide us when we have questions about our own lives or about certain situations. When they receive information from other dimensions, they filter the messages through the magical screens of their own intelligence. Therefore, they're able to decode messages that many of us would fail to understand. These oracles often access other realms through the beings and entities that reside in those planes. They can receive and transmit messages from all kinds of sentient beings, including earth humans who have transitioned to other dimensions. Diviners can also work with non-human species such as plants and animals. In these cases, we might ask for their assistance as animal communicators or as telepathic links to our natural surroundings.

Examples of Magickal Icons: A specific Tarot card, a rune, or a crystal ball

The Etheric Oracle works on large scale projects that connect our 3D world with other dimensions. These seers are drawn to assist beings from other realms with complex projects such as etheric grid systems, planetary energy lines, and portal networks. We often find these oracles working with timelines and other etheric constructs. When we consult with one of these gifted oracles, we are usually interested in the “big picture.” We may want to understand more about our planet’s trajectory on a particular timeline or how we can assist with a world-wide situation. These oracles can also work on individual situations if they so choose, but they will usually turn to their natural talents within the etheric realms and work on those planes rather than relying on direct contact with the person, animal, plants, or areas they are assisting.

The Keeper: General Characteristics

Keepers love being surrounded by items they’ve collected and have deemed valuable. Their belongings might not have any earthly monetary value, although that is possible, but they are priceless in other ways. Keepers tend to find and preserve items that hold a great deal of magical energy. They’re often the ones we turn to when we need some sort of unique magical item or tool. Another characteristic of Keepers is their natural ability to sort through media and find the most accurate and relevant information available. We might think of them as “magical librarians.” They often find themselves in charge of large quantities of esoteric and occult information that can be utilized and referenced by others who are looking for specific data.

Another part of the Keepers magick shows up through their willingness to hold space for magical workings. And they stand as perceptive witnesses to events and situations. They often record their observations, and we all benefit by reading or listening to their accounts. Many Keepers have been called “bards” in times past as they often express their spiritual gifts through oral traditions and other forms of record keeping. They are sacred storytellers who allow us to bridge to other worlds and other times through their messages.

We know we're in the presence of a Keeper when we see things such as elaborate grimoires, detailed scrapbooks, and daily journals. These magical souls feel a deep connection to tangible proofs of things that have happened. They preserve memories, information, traditions, and items so that these precious treasures can be passed down through the ages.

The Collector is a Keeper with a natural ability to sense and locate uncommon and remarkable objects. From unusual seashells to rare books, these Magical Keepers are most content when surrounded by their eclectic collections. These gifted souls seem to know when a magical item is nearby, and their heightened senses lead them directly to the item holding the unique etheric energy they're perceiving. They might even employ techniques such as dowsing in order to zero in on their targets. When they have the object or book in hand, many can also interpret the energies. This helps them organize their collections according to different categories and types of energy. Even if the Collector is unsure about how the item is meant to be used, it will be added to the collection until the time comes when the purpose and energy signature of the item is revealed. Because Collectors find themselves in the midst of various types of energy, they utilize their innate abilities of shielding. Advanced Collectors can shield themselves from unwanted energies and are also able to construct shielded spaces where they can store some of the intense energetic items they've accumulated. They are adept curators of their own magical museums.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Dowsing rods, a magnifying glass, or a compass

The Archivist Keepers organize and categorize esoteric, magical, and occult information so that they can learn from the information they have gathered and can more easily share their findings with others. These gifted practitioners take pride in developing organization systems to house their discoveries. They are magical librarians who are willing to assist others in their searches for specific information. Not only do they assist fellow magicians, but they themselves are often highly knowledgeable. Most are avid readers and researchers and often share what they have learned. Many produce books, software, and other forms of media based on their research and experience. Archivists are architects of information systems and are highly perceptive when it comes to spotting patterns. They're able to manifest elaborate systems by manipulating patterns in etheric realms and then implement those constructs in the 3D world. These intriguing magicians might be surrounded by stacks of books and sheaves of papers, but when it comes to finding certain information, they know exactly where to find it. They thrive when they are pursuing knowledge and searching for answers to life's many mysteries.

Examples of Magickal Icons: A handmade bookmark with a sigil, geode or complex crystal lattice

The Bards are Keepers who hold stories, memories, sounds, and other traditions within their souls and then share these collected treasures with others through a means of story-telling or song. They're also willing to bear witness to rituals, ceremonies, and other meaningful events and record the activities they observe. Bards are often blessed with expansive memories and enhanced capacities to remember stories and oral accounts. Some are gifted with extra language abilities which allow them to gather information from different cultures and other dimensions that require translation. When Bards share their stories through voice or song, their magical energies reach out into the surrounding atmosphere and infuse the air with etheric signatures. Some of these etheric tendrils connect to the original events themselves and are able to convey the prime energies associated with those events. This is why, as Bards develop, they hold a great deal of power and must learn how and when they should wield such power.

As others feel and absorb that those energy strands, the Bard must learn how to control the release of that energy so as not to overwhelm the audience. It's similar to a singer learning how to properly control her breathing and diaphragm in order to produce the purest sounds. Bards sometimes choose to learn to play various musical instruments too, as they provide effective ways to enhance the story's energy through resonant sounds, and Bards are naturally attuned to sound signatures.

Examples of Magickal Icons: A favorite musical instrument, or a feathered cap

The Builder: General Characteristics

Builders are natural-born creators. They love to design, build, construct, engineer, tinker, invent, and oversee projects. In the realms of magick, these creations might include etheric grids, energy frameworks, 3D magical tools, sigils, etheric portals, ritual clothing, alters, medicine bags, and the list goes on and on. Magical Builders might use their abilities to design and construct things in etheric and astral realms. Others, who have strong artisan tendencies, enjoy making things in the 3D realm. These can include everything from an original set of tarot cards to large scale pyramid structures and stargates. In every case, the Builder draws on his natural instincts and magical skills to build and infuse creations with focused intentions.

Some Magical Builders prefer to focus on large projects and oversee the operations while others prefer working on small, personal projects. Some want to use their skills exclusively in etheric planes and others prefer to work on magical projects in this dimension. And others are comfortable working in both realms using their creativity to bridge dimensions. No matter what is created, it will be filled with the magical energy and spiritual elements chosen and injected by the Builder. These talented souls can create items for others according to specific needs. We often see their crafts on display in meta-physical shops or available online.

In some cases, an advanced Builder will be able to design and help create cosmic grid systems and other planetary constructs. These complex structures often require assistance to put in place. In these situations, we find Builders who are gifted at directing others and overseeing projects ensuring that these large-scale creations will operate correctly. Builders often have strong visualization abilities and are often able to manifest their desires in the physical realm.

The Designer is a Magical Builder who intuitively understands the “big picture.” These creators are naturally blessed with innovative ideas and invite inspiration from higher dimensions. Whether they’re designing a new magickal training program, a meditation ritual, or a new web site, they focus on the outcomes and far-reaching effects of the things they create. Magical Designers give a great deal of thought to the overall effects of their constructs as they work on their projects. They imbue each part of the project with their intentions and take special care to make sure each part enhances and is in synch with every other part. Concepts of harmony, synergy, and balance are very important to these Builders. For these reasons, these talented Builders are equipped to design and develop large, complex projects if they choose to do so. These Builders also prefer to work on projects that have artistic components rather than devoting their time to purely functional structures. The aesthetics of beauty and symmetry are highly valued by these creative artisans.

Examples of Magickal Icons: A paintbrush, crystals laid out on a grid diagram

Inventors are special kinds of Builders that spend their most productive hours in protective privacy. These Builders prefer to work alone as they receive inspiration and experiment with new technologies. Once they receive the idea for a new construct, they turn to their intuition and etheric sensitivities to expand on the initial vision. Once again, like the other Magical Builders, some prefer to work with constructs that they can create in the 3D realm and others spend most of their time working on etheric builds.

Inventors are here to create “new” technologies, tools, systems, and a myriad of imbued items. These novel ideas come into the minds of Builders through etheric and spiritual channels. Inventors are able to receive these ideas and inspirations by accessing the corresponding, magical outlets of information. Once the Inventors have created their prototypes, they become more social and are eager to share their creations with other magical practitioners so that they can be tested, produced, and used by others.

Examples of Magickal Icons: A tool kit, colorful images of laboratories or workshops

The Engineers are Magical Builders who have an uncanny sense for how things need to be put together. These talented builders are usually excellent when it comes to solving puzzles or working on several layers at once. Moving parts, complex patterns, unanswered questions, none of these hinderances seem to phase the gifted Engineer. These creators love a challenge and thanks to their patience and diligence, they are excellent at solving complex problems by taking things one step at a time. Magical

Engineers are able to envision the end results they want to achieve. They blend their intuitive skills with their sharp intelligence to reach their goals. Naturally talented at skills like reverse engineering and deconstruction, they are also able to reassemble projects and create new constructs as a result of their acute perception. They take pride in creating objects and systems that function well and perform according to their intentions. In the realms of magick, this skill can be utilized at every level and is highly valued by all practitioners.

The Weaver: General Characteristics

Weavers work much like healers except that they usually focus on systems, grids, and networks instead of individuals. If a tear or disruption appears in an otherwise smooth surface, Magical Weavers can apply their skills and repair the rift. These are the special souls who know how to heal the jagged edges of etheric fields and how to sooth the frayed edges of an astral tear. As large-scale healers, they're able to reunite broken or disjointed parts of a network, whether that network is composed of websites, interdimensional portals, or sentient beings.

A talented weaver can “spin” threads into an existing network, and they can create entirely new webs by weaving outwards from a “nexus” of energy. Natural born connectors, weavers see the big picture and recognize individual parts of that picture when they come across them. They gather up these bits and pieces of a larger whole and bring them together so that they can interact and become a complete and holistic field of energy.

Whether these archetypes are working on an existing framework or creating a new web, they're able to pinpoint where connections should be supported and how the lines between such hubs should be laid out. Many weavers have an innate understanding of energy grids such as the earth's ley lines and the electro-magnetic patterns. With practice, they can become masters of connecting physical planes to extra-dimensional realms through fields and networks designed for inter-dimensional interaction. Depending upon their specialty, they can create, heal, and repair energetic webs, create and sustain multi-dimensional networks, or destroy and unravel etheric systems.

The Nexus is a powerful weaver able to establish new webs through the calling in of power and the projection of the generated energy out from a central point. In this kind of magick, the weaver is not only able to attune the central hub to his or her desires but can also project those intentions throughout the entire web. When this power is invoked, each line or spoke that leads out from the central hub will also carry the initial intentions of the practitioner. Nexus magick often includes the abilities to heal and repair central hubs, add vortices to existing networks, and link different webs by aligning each web's central nexus of power. The Nexus magician is an individual who can hold and maintain a great deal of power within his or her personal energetic field. This requires enormous depth, patience, and intense focus. The work of the Nexus can be exhausting and may require extended periods of rejuvenation. This magick is especially taxing in the beginning stages when the Nexus is creating a new web of power and supporting the "birthing" process of a new etheric structure. These etheric web creations require great skill to develop and maintain as they are often vast and complex in nature.

Examples of Magickal Icons: bicycle wheel, image of the Fibonacci sequence in nature

Spinners are perpetually creating linkages between aligned elements. They work their magick by fusing intentions together through etheric strands of energy. If a Spinner is working to help create a new etheric network, the practitioner will concentrate on the desired intentions and create threads aligned with those intentions. Those energetic lines will then fuse naturally to the vortex, or central hub of the web, and drift outwards waiting for appropriate and aligned connections to attach. In many cases, the Spinner will infuse the magical strands with additional intentions that clarify or enhance the overall intentions of the web. These extra nuances bring individuality to each thread of energy, and those enhanced lines tend to attract diverse and unique connections. Spinners add a myriad of colors and flavors to the etheric webs they help construct. Like all other Weavers, the Spinner can repair and/or unravel etheric connections inside energy networks. For example, if Spinners become aware of a corrupt or damaging situation, their magick can break down the links that the system of corruption depends on, such as a delivery mechanism or a communications network.

Examples of Magickal Icons: Spider, spider's web, spinning wheel

The Outfitter can weave multiple webs together using interdimensional methods of binding, weaving, and stitching according to function, purpose, and alignment. Somewhat of a multidimensional tailor, the Outfitter knows how to construct a complete “suit” and can create an expansive project working with various webs and individual energy scraps that are available and resonate with the desired energy patterns. The final construct may appear as a well-worn, patch-work type of creation, or the “new outfit” may feel smooth and seamless. The results of the Outfitter’s labors depend on the materials available to the Outfitter and on the magical purpose aligned with the overall creation itself. Just as a pair of pants is designed to cover the legs and gloves are made to wear on our hands, each part of the Outfitter’s new expanded web serves a specific purpose and has a unique function. The Outfitter is gifted with extra-ordinary perception when it comes to recognizing how each part will best serve and how all the pieces will come together as a unified whole in the end.

Examples of Magickal Icons: spools of thread or pieces of sewing patterns, 3D models
